Honi Soit Qui Mal y Pense

The website continues to recover and grow since the changes were made just before Christmas 2022. Those changes include:

- The reintroduction of the 'Gallery' access via the 'Other' link
- Corrections made to the 'Blog' posts
- An inclusion of a 'Sales' page
- Some new links on the 'Journals' page
- Lost pages found and returned to the website via the menus

The Forum

The Forum was not my idea, it was something I was asked if I would include one on the website. I have done so and there has been little interest. I am not going to remove it as I do think its inclusion makes the site a more usable platform for all if used.

Sale Page

I have some items in my possession that I no longer want to keep so I have decided to create a page where I can sell them to other members of the regiment.

The first item listed is 'The Historical Record of the 14th (King's) Hussars'. If you are interested, you will have to email me as I am not going to create an online shop.

The Blog

I am continuing to add new items to the Blog so please make sure you check it out daily or you may miss those post and any news I hear or am told.

Journals

Some of the links to the journals remain unstable and I am not sure why? I have once again gone through them all and they 'should' all now be working fine, any further issues please let me know.

The page is NOT just for journals, if you have any further publications containing anything about the regiment, please contact me.

The concept behind this website was mainly to make the journals available to everyone at the touch of a button. Without those of the 20th Hussars it feels like the website remains unfinished. So, I keep saying this I know but if I don't the collection of regimental Journals will never be complete, and that part of the regiment's history will be lost over time. I am still looking for the other Journals of the 20th Hussars, I only have one currently so. if you can help me obtain them to scan so I can upload them to the website, please contact me asp.

Thank you.
